Getting to Know Me

I was born and raised in rural Kansas, the Land of Oz, the Sunflower State, Jayhawk State, and the Wheat and Air Capital of the World. My historical roots are German and growing up my mother instilled a strong work ethic. I still hear her words today, "You work from sun up to sun down and if the works not done you keep working!" I have a brother, two nieces and two nephews. After 45 years, I left the state and moved to Maryland to experience the rich history this part of the country has to offer.

My Education

After teaching 24 years if I had a dollar for every class I've attended I'd be wealthy. I earned my undergraduate degree in Health and Physical Education from Emporia State University and graduated from Southwestern College with a Masters in Special Education. Building relationships with parents and students is essential to their success. My love of learning continues to energize me, even after all these years.
